The New Jersey legislature has bought of a Chicago firm for $21,000 a system of steel pigeon holes worth $7,400. Even at that cost it will prove a paying investment if it serves to pigeon hole nine-tenths of the bills introduced.

Never having intended that the Armenian investigation should investigate, the unspeakable Turk has decided that it shall not go on until better weather comes. For the purpose of that investigation better weather will never come.

In short, and with as much gallantry as the circumstances will admit, we think the female forgers who are now plying their vocations with such brilliant success ought to get exactly the same punishment as male forgers. This is an age of equal rights.

If the fool killer ever resumes business it will be his duty promptly to dispatch Calvin Ross of Shelbyville, Ind., who set a shotgun trap for thieves in his cellar and failed to tell his wife who, when she went to open the cellar door, received wounds which will cripple her for life.

A writer declares that "the future educator will see to it that the child's precept structures are not unregistered chaotically and disymmetrically." We mistake the temper of the American boy if he will permit anything so terrible to be done to his structures without a vigorous protest.

The anti-cruelty people have charge of the dog pound in Philadelphia, and they refuse to give a cur dog to a surgeon in order that a section of one of its nerves may be used to relieve the distressing disease of a human being. A society for the promotion of the welfare of folks seems to be in order.

The surgeons, after showing that kidneys and lungs and sections of the alimentary canal can be removed without fatal results, have now demonstrated that a man with a broken neck can be fixed as good as new. The grip, however, is still greater than the entire profession.

Thoughtful men will make preparation for the careful picking of their fruits during the summer and fall, and the kind of baskets in which to send them to market. A nice basket filled with choice fruit will nearly always sell for double the money and as quick again as fruit and basket of the nondescript commonplace character. This applies to many other things besides fruit and basket.

The Chinese warships at Wei-Hai-Wei were destroyed, not by the great, heavily-armed Japanese steel-clad battleships but by the little torpedo boats, which sent five ships to the bottom within thirty hours. Much has been said about the battles of the future being fought among the clouds with airships. It seems probable that the naval battle of the future may be fought under the sea with submarine torpedoes.

The millions left for public uses by James Lick, of San Francisco, more than twenty years ago have been exceedingly well handled by the trustees. They have expended about $2,000,000 on the Lick Observatory, now one of the great astronomical institutions of the world; a school of mechanical arts, free baths, and a number of statues, and have a million left to hand over to the Academy of Sciences and the Society of California Pioneers, who are the residuary legatees. The property was scattered all over California, and there was also a contesting heir to compromise with, but the trustees stuck to their work faithfully and deserve lasting credit for their complete success.

The appeal of the people of Newfoundland to the British government for help in the distress which has come upon them has been rejected. In reply to Lord Ripon, colonial secretary, says that the self-governing colonies should not look to the imperial government for aid in financial affairs, but he offers to send a royal commission to the island to relieve actual distress from the treasury funds. The Newfoundlanders did not ask for government aid, but for aid in working out their own relief, and it seems to be an act of political heartlessness thus to repudiate interest in and disown the oldest colony in America. Blood is not always thicker than water.

A white man in Virginia has been sentenced to prison for life for stealing a piece of bacon worth about thirty-seven cents. This was his third offense and the law provides life imprisonment for third offenses. Virginia laws are almost as unjust as Virginia lawlessness.

Realism on the stage has educated audiences to such a fine point of appreciation that when an actor's clothing caught fire and half burned him to death during the progress of a performance the other evening the spectators took it for granted that the accident was a part of the show.

Now that the Mahdists no longer harry the Sudan, which gives the world its main supply of gum arabic, there is no excuse for our postoffice department in giving us stamps which won't stick. The nuisance is a petty one, but it evolves a good deal of widespread blather from wicked men.

Unprotected men will view with alarm the proposition to form conversation classes to teach women how to talk.

Poor Robert Louis Stevenson would shake his coffin with laughter, if he could, at the latest story about him. It is said that he imported firearms before his death for one of the contending factions in Samoa. Stevenson died and feared firearms, and never discharged one in his life except in a novel.

Last Friday there was much excitement around the Kansas penitentiary over a murderous assault on James J. Howard, cell house guard, made by Finnian Wolf, a full-blooded Indian who is under a life sentence for murder. While the convicts were all out to dinner, but the Indian and a one-armed prisoner, Howard was in the cell house alone with them. He leaped over the desk in a drowsy manner, when the Indian picked up the hatchet that was on the desk and struck him on the head with it, fracturing his skull. He was about to repeat the blow when the one-armed prisoner grappled with him and managed to wrench the blade from the handle. The Indian then cut Howard half a dozen times on the head and shoulders with the blade of the hatchet, then made a rope of his clothing and attempted to scale the prison wall. The alarm was given, and his escape prevented by shooting him and turning the hose on him. The guard is not expected to live.

Dependence as the result of not being able to stop drinking strong liquor is thought to be the cause. He was a nephew of Chaucer M. Depew, his mother being a sister of the railroad magnate.

A discovery which baffles the scientists was made 15 miles Northeast of Marysville. David Lasher, who was digging a well, at a depth of 15 feet found the tooth of a mastodon which was larger than a man's head. Scientists say that it was the tooth of an animal larger than the elephant. Mr. Lasher was offered $600 for it by geologists of Nebraska, but refused the offer.

HUMILIATION OF A COUNTESS.

Driven by Poverty to Menial Service and Finally to Theft.

Countess Clarice Strozzi sat on the prisoner's bench in a Rome police court three weeks ago. In the police books she had been registered as a chambermaid whose mistress accused her of theft. Behind this humiliation of the Countess lay a remarkable story. Count Filippo Strozzi, her father, stood in the front rank of Papal Rome's society. He was enormously rich and his ancestry was traced well back beyond the middle ages. He had strengthened his fortune by marrying a Marquise of Bondi, who in 1867 bore him the daughter afterward known as the Countess Clarice. The child lived in Roman splendor and luxury until her twelfth year, when her father lost three-fourths of his fortune. She had just begun to attract lovers by her beauty and he counted on by her parents for a rich marriage, when the rest of the family fortune went by the board. The Strozzi's yielded their last hold on the fashion of the capital, withdrew to a cottage in Bologna, and with only the necessities of life, began a long penance for the extravagance of other days. The troubles of her parents told upon the young countess' spirits. Without society and exiled by poverty from her acquaintances of former days, she grew moody and despondent. Eventually she decided to run away and distract her mind with work. At Christmas she went to visit a girl friend in Catania. She did not return home, but hastened from Catania to Rome, where she got a place as a chambermaid. She had cut her hair and disguised her figure and carriage so completely that she was not recognized by two of her father's old friends who called at her mistress' house, and could not be identified by the detectives whom her father had looking for her. Accidentally one day in February she heard a man calling upon her mistress speak of her father's distress. A few hours later she took some $300 worth of diamonds and pearls from her mistress' room. She pawned them in the evening, and made ready to send the money to her father on the following day; but the theft was discovered, and she was arrested the next morning. Five men from the Roman world of fashion appeared in court to plead with the judge to show her mercy. They all had known her as a child in her father's palace. The result was that the judge pronounced her crime already expiated by the six days' imprisonment between her arrest and trial.

THE CO-OPERATIVE PLAN.

Many Chicago Retail Stores Are Putting It Into Practice.

Quite a number of Chicago's large retail establishments are at present being conducted on the co-operative plan, and the result is said to have been highly satisfactory to both the proprietors and the employees. January 1 is the date at which the distribution of profits take place, and consequently quite a number of the establishments which have adopted the system made their semi-annual division of profits within the past several weeks says the Chicago Grocer. Among those which have adopted this method of rewarding their employees are Carson, Pirie Scott & Co., and the system under which this distribution is made is something unique and well worthy attention of business men throughout the country. When the system was adopted all the salespeople who had been in the employ of the company one year or more were then informed that if the amount of their sales for six months exceeded the total for the same period of time during the previous year, they would receive a commission—averaging 2 1/2 per cent. throughout the store—on the excess. Immediately the young men and women behind the counters began to increase their efforts to sell goods, and when the first distribution was made last July some surprising results were shown. Shop girls, drawing $10 a week in wages, received as high as $30 in premiums for the six months. The salary of the employee is raised in ratio with the excess of the sales and according to the wage percentage which governs the department in which she works. If, however, she was successful in exceeding the amount of sales necessary to make her salary at the percentage fixed in her department by, say, $1,000, she would receive a commission on this amount of about 2 1/2 per cent. or $25. Besides this she would have her salary raised for the next six months by an amount equal to the commission per week that she had earned on her sales. In this example it would be one-twentieth of $25, or $1.25 advance per week.

Boston and Opera.

Has Boston outgrown opera? A visit to the opera at Mechanics' hall raises in the mind the awful question whether the present generation has not outgrown opera, writes a Hub critic. "The only thing that really prevents any serious opera from being absurdly ridiculous is such a combination of effects, through an appeal to the senses of seeing and hearing, that in the resulting emotion one loses sight of the essentially ridiculous features of the performance. If a woman should actually fall into a pond and ten men should come down to the shore to rescue her, and on the way should stop, every man with his left foot extended just so, and should all gesticulate with their right arms and sing in parts, 'We fly, we fly, we fly—y—y—to rescue, rescue thee,' and should then recede a couple of steps all together, and at last advance by a series of such movements and pull the woman out, still singing, we should find the thing so amusing that even the prospect of the woman's death would hardly keep us from laughing."

Why He Objected.

When the late Judge Yaple was dying a well known minister called upon him and asked if it would be agreeable to him for a word of prayer to be offered. "No," slowly and respectfully answered the dying jurist, "at this stage of the game it would be too much like prayer under duress."

WEAK NERVES

Indicate as surely as any physical symptom shows anything, that the organs and tissues of the body are not satisfied with their nourishment.

They draw their sustenance from the blood, and if the blood is thin, impure, or insufficient, they are in a state of revolt. Their complaints are made to the brain, the king of the body, through the nervous system, and the result of the general dissatisfaction is what we call Nervousness.

This is a concise, reasonable explanation of the whole matter.

The cure for Nervousness, then, is simple. Purify and enrich your blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the nerves, tissues and organs will have the healthful nourishment they crave. Nervousness and Weakness will then give way to strength and health.

That this is not theory but fact is proven by the voluntary statements of thousands cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read the next column.

"With pleasure I will state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has helped me wonderfully. For several months I could not lie down to sleep on account of heart trouble and also Prostration of the Nerves.

For three years I had been doctoring, but could not get cured. I received relief for a while, but not permanent. Soon after beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there was a change for the better. In a short time I was feeling splendidly. I now rest well and am able to do work of whatever kind. If I had not tried Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not know what would have become of me. I keep it in my house all the time, and other members of the family take it, and all say there is

Nothing Like Hood's

Sarsaparilla. I have highly recommended it and one of my neighbors has commenced taking it. I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for every opportunity." Mrs. S. BRADDOCK, 404 Erie Av., Williamsport, Pennsylvania. Remember
